FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

My capital costs for this system are high because of the rural nature of the system but my subscriber satisfaction is also high because no other operator has provided these people with service. No one has complained to me about our prices.

The additional burden of compliance would be detrimental to our ability to provide the best in customer service. Further, concerning the paperwork, I have not received the worksheets or the instructions for calculating the benchmarks. Judging from what other small operators have found, I would need outside assistance in the preparation of the paperwork, which I cannot afford.

Sincerely,
